Training course

Bytom, Poland 2021

Description

The project "With the eye of youth" is a comprehensive youth initiative aimed at activating young people in four partner cities: Bytom in Poland, Vsetín in the Czech Republic, Trenčín in Slovak Republic and Ormož from Slovenia.

General aim of the training course is to train participants in running urban activities for young people. Another purpose is to provide substantive preparation of people who will lead youth activities in the cities before the youth exchange in spring 2021. These activities contain with: analyze of the youth resources in the cities (hard and soft), preparation the needs and opportunities of young people, develop cooperation with decision-makers and local NGOs, and create a common dissemination strategy.

During the training, non-formal education experts, gamification experts and experienced street workers will train participants in conducting urban activities for young people. Participants will be included in a multi-sector (municipality - NGO – youth council - youth) and multicultural (4 partner's cities) network of cooperation and exchange of good practices.

The training will take place in Bytom, which will enable the implementation of activities in the city space and the place of implementation of the results. One of the goals is to introduce participants to non-formal education methods, therefore all activities will be carried out in accordance with these methods. Working in international groups allow to develop an intercultural space. Participants will be able to reflect on culture, its importance and educational opportunities for young people, and in a wider context for local communities. Intercultural education will be introduced at different levels: self-reflection (iceberg of culture), cultural exchange (intercultural evening) and results (evaluation of group work).

Workshops on the inclusion of young people will be the main axis of the training. All methods used can be used in work with young people. Their practicality and applications will be discussed during the evaluation. An important aspect will be to summarize attitudes and analyze the possibility of changing them in the form of a simulation. Through a case study workshop, participants will learn how to use mentoring in youth work and a solution-focused approach. The practical aspects of youth work will also be supported by the participation of young leaders who are both peer educators and recipients of the methods. An approach based on continuous reflection and evaluation will foster the effectiveness of educational processes.

The results of the training will be: change of attitudes and new skills of participants, flexible and developmental base of educational tools, and networking of participants in an intercultural and intersectoral environment. Linking the training to the following youth exchange (spring 2021) will enable participants of the TC to have a unique education by supporting and mentoring the youth activity that takes place right after the course. This will positively affect the educational processes and change the attitudes of the participants.
